

ALPHABET BOOKS

- Aylesworth, J. (1991). Old black fly. New York: Holt.
Rhyming text follows a mischievous black fly through alphabet as he has a very busy day.
- Ehlert, L. (1989). Eating the alphabet. New York: Harcourt.
Drawings of foods beginning with the letter being presented are labeled with their names in both upper- and lowercase letters.
- Hoban, T. (1982). A, B, see! New York: Greenwillow.
Upper case letters are accompanied by objects in silhouette that begin with the letter shown.
- Howland, N. (2000). ABC Drive! Boston: Clarion.
While going for a drive with his mother, a boy encounters an ambulance, bus, and other ABC items.
- Musgrove, M. (1976). Ashanti to Zulu. New York: Dial.
This Caldecott winner gives information about African tribes as it presents the alphabet.
- Onyefulu, I. (1993). A is for Africa. New York: Dutton.
Color photos and a brief paragraph using the target letter show everyday life in Africa.
- Scarry, R. (1973). Richard Scarry's find your ABC. New York: Random.
Each letter is illustrated with numerous objects and creatures whose names contain the letter.
- Shirley, G. C. (1991). A is for animals. New York: Simon and Schuster.
Illustrations and information are provided about animals whose name start with the target letter.
- Wood, J. (1993). Animal parade. New York: Bradbury.
A parade starts with an aardvark, an antelope, and other animals whose names begin with A and proceeds through the rest of the letters of the alphabet.