

Barnes Log Cabin

1868, heavy rainfall in the mountains knocked over many trees and dammed up most of the Kern River. Eventually, the dam broke and a flood of trees floated into the San Joaquin Valley on the flooding river. Thomas Barnes, a farmer who lived southwest of Bakersfield, used these trees to build a log cabin the next year.